A Family Doctor is Important

Family doctors will identify (diagnosis) and treat common health problems by:

- Looking at, listening to, and examining parts of your body

- Asking you questions about:

  - Your health

  - Health of your family members

  - Your life and daily activities (like diet, exercise, smoking, alcohol use, drug use, work and living conditions)

- Ordering tests (like urine, blood, or imaging).

- Connecting you to other health services and specialists.

- Following up and coordinating care. They will explain test results.
